

WOMEN ON THE ANTONINE WALL—VIBIA PACATA

Lots of women lived along the Antonine Wall. Some were the wives of soldiers, some were servants, and some were traders.

Vibia Pacata was the wife of the commanding officer at Westerwood Fort (near to Cumbernauld today).

She was well-travelled, spending time in north Africa and eastern Europe before she came to Scotland.

Use the space below to write a short story or poem about Vibia Pacata and how she felt about travelling around the Roman Empire.
